About

Philip Anderson utilizes 14 years of experience and a creative eye, combining artistry with technical skill, to create compelling, story driven, imagery. Extremely calm under pressure, he provides strong, collaborative leadership to a team of any size. His cinematography work spans many genres, and encompasses feature film, episodic television and commercial work. He has had the pleasure of lensing films such as "Here Awhile" starring Anna Camp, "V-Force" starring Bruce Dern and Billy Zane, "Combat Report", Tuff Tv's first dramatic series, "Seaside", starring Broadway hit Ariana DeBose, and festival darling "Shut Up Anthony". In addition, He has supported multiple feature films and television series as a 2nd Unit DP or camera operator. his credit list is flooded with smaller projects; two standouts being the period western drama, "Gage" which continues to screen across Europe and the children's fantasy, "Misfits", made for Disney. His commercial work includes clients such as Daimler, Intel, Nike, Trend Micro, Farmer Boys and more.
